

Ms Isabella Lee

I believe that every child is a success story waiting to happen. The struggles and setbacks they face are just part of growing up, not signs of failure.

I'm here to guide them and plant seeds of hope. I might not always see those seeds bloom, but that's okay. What matters is being there for them in the moment and believing in who they can become.

Each child has something special inside them. My job is to help them see it too and support them as they figure out their own path forward.
